

- Congress is considering another major spending package to stimulate the economy. Which of the following actions would you prefer?
- Congress should stop spending money the country doesn't have
 - Congress should spend whatever it takes on medical research and prevention to limit the damage from the coronavirus
 - Congress should repair and expand America's infrastructure by investing in roads, bridges, the utility grid, and wireless networks
 - Congress should put as much money as possible into the pockets of Americans hurt by the downturn
